We design and develop superior avionics for aviation.
That's all we do. And we do it well.

Avidyne designs and manufactures integrated instruments, flight displays, VHF and GPS-based navigation, communication, and data link transceivers, digital flight control systems, as well as a range of ADS-B, traffic detection and weather detection sensors.

Experienced entrepreneur and pilot, Dan Schwinn, founded Avidyne in 1994 with the mission of modernizing avionics by applying advanced technology in order to improve safety and increase aircraft utility.

"As a pilot and aircraft owner, I was struck by how little GA cockpits had changed over the last 30 years," said Schwinn. "I saw huge potential to develop a core technology and define a new generation of avionics that improve flying safety."

Setting the standard future technological success, was the Entegra Release 9 system that represented the next generation of integrated flight deck systems for general aviation aircraft, including high-resolution IFD5000 displays, dual Air Data and Attitude Heading Reference Systems (ADAHRS), dual-redundant FMS900w systems with a QWERTY keypad, next-generation fully-digital 16-watt VHF NAV/COM radios, and dual WAAS/RNP-capable GPS receivers. With Entegra Release 9, Avidyne developed a truly integrated system that is specifically designed to eliminate complexity, reduce head-down time, provide a whole new level of redundancy, and dramatically enhance safety for OEM and retrofit applications.

The company set a new standard in 2014 with its full line of panel-mounted avionics, including the IFD550, IFD540 and IFD440 FMS/GPS/NAV/COMs with Hybrid Touch, Page & Tab user interface, easy GeoFill™ and Airway flight planning, and integrated Bluetooth® and WiFi capability. In addition, the IFD1™ series were designed to be “plug-and-play”, direct replacements for the soon-to-be obsolete GNS530/430-series navigators, dramatically simplifying installation and overall cost when upgrading.

Dan has established the strategic vision of Avidyne and leads the management team. Prior to founding Avidyne Corporation, Dan co-founded Shiva Corporation, a global communications equipment manufacturer that grew to sales of $150M and 500 employees. Dan was president from 1985 until 1993 and chairman until 1995. During Dan's tenure at Shiva, the company had the leading share in its markets and provided outstanding returns to its investors, reaching a $2.6 billion market capitalization.

Dan founded Avidyne in 1995 to bring sophisticated electronic instrumentation to general aviation aircraft. Dan currently flies a TBM850 and a Lake Renegade seaplane, and he is also type-rated in the Falcon 10 jet. He is a graduate of MIT and also a member of the Visiting Committee on Aeronautics and Astronautics at MIT, a board member of the General Aviation Manufacturers Association (GAMA), the Small Aircraft Manufacturers Association (SAMA), and a director of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA).
